matter of granting the Forty-second Street, Manhattanville and St. Nicholas Avenue Railroad Company a franchise for extending the tracks through Eighty-sixth street, west to Tenth avenue.

Nearly one hundred and fifty residents of the vicinity concerned were on hand, armed with petitions containing names under a general permit to may gas mains.

Notice was given to the United States and Brush companies that unless the wires and poles on Ninth avenue below Fourteenth street and on Sixth avenue, south to Houston street, were not removed immediately the poles would be cut down.

It was announced that 113,250 feet of wires had been removed during August of those residents who want the road built through Eighty-sixth street. One of the petitioners told an "Evening World" reporter to-day that the main opposition to building the road was from the wealthy property-owner D.
